

International Overdose Awareness Day

Today, we remember those we've lost to overdose and stand in solidarity with families and communities affected by this global crisis.

It's a day to break the stigma, spread awareness, and call for compassionate, evidence-based responses.

Training was successfully completed for our data collectors as part of the study:

"Assessing Tuberculosis Infection Prevalence, Predictors, and Healthcare Services Accessibility among People Who Use Drugs in Lebanon."

This marked a key milestone in improving TB prevention, testing, and treatment for one of Lebanon's key populations.

A big thank you to all partners and supporters your commitment was essential to the success of this MENAHRA-led initiative and our shared goal of advancing health equity.
